Karl:

Shrek on the 24th, at 7:30 P.M., in Taylor

That's my plan.

The performance of Shrek The Musical on the 24th was a complete "up" from start to finish. I loved every minute of it. What an amazing talent pool you as a director get to work with. I have an immense appetite for those big razzle-dazzle production numbers that Broadway shows are famous for. The Richard the Third look alike is an amazing performer. The Big Bad Wolf was fun to watch: intense, expressive, and having a good time. That's the first show that I've been to "without Joe"--and that was difficult to assimilate. Thanks again for hosting my admission.

You're welcome to any and all of "my" shows. I will keep you in the loop.

Yes, I thought about the fact that Joe was not there and that it would be odd for you. I can only think how much fun this show, in particular, would have been for him to see.
